

For everyone interested in allotments in Windermere, Bowness and Troutbeck Bridge

Community Gardening at Rydal Hall

Our trip to see Rydal Hall Community Vegetable Garden was a great success, with ten of us getting a guided tour of this beautiful place from head gardener Iain Turnbull (in centre of picture, above). Iain explained how the community garden works, with volunteer gardeners selecting crops, sharing the workload and the produce. Iain is looking for more fruit and veg growers – if you're interested, give Debbie or Paul a call (details below).

Going to Growing Well

Our next trip will probably be to Growing Well, the innovative community-owned organic growing and training business at Low Sizergh Farm. If you would like to come along, get in touch with Debbie or Paul (details below) and we'll put you on the list!

Allotments in Bowness Bay Consultation

The National Park's consultation on Bowness Bay and The Glebe includes a possibility of new allotments at Rectory Farm, near Braithwaite Fold in Bowness. If you think this is a good idea, have your say on a feedback form from Bowness Tourist Information Centre or on the National Park website before November 29.

Do you get your Allotments newsletter by post?

If you could get it by email instead, contact Debbie or Paul – it's greener and will save time and money.

Garden-sharing

We've had a couple of enquiries about the scope for garden-sharing, whereby people with lots of space are teamed with people keen to grow. If you are interested in this, either as a landowner (no matter how small your garden) or as a grower (no matter how big your aspirations), get in touch with – well you know the rest!

How can we help?
